

Named after Ravel's musical composition for its accelerated movement and alluding to a caravan that crosses the desert, the project was initiated in 2010 by Belgian artists Frank JMA Castelyns, Willo Gonnissen, Pierre Mertens and Mulugeta Tafesse as a response to a world of ever more global art. The principles have always been very simple: the project must be able to travel light in a suitcase and be carried out with relatively few means. Participating artists are invited to make an intervention on the page of a newspaper of their choice, scan it and send it to the organizers who will print and show it in a public space and/or gallery. The art caravan arrives, temporarily stops and leaves again, always in a different formation.

Bolero, an international art project on the move, visits Kyiv and Kassel at the same time.

Five Ukrainian artists, selected by curator Alexandra Tyranova, contributed works in which the war in Ukraine is tangible. In Kassel, five German artists, selected by the German artist Jürgen O. Olbrich, participate in Bolero's 'nomadic exhibition', which fits with the concept of Documenta 15, looking for connection between artists and different cultures. Bolero is a unique artists' initiative that has been shown in 15 locations worldwide since 2010. Currently it has 93 artists. The newspaper as a medium-support of art works connects the location, the artists in Ukraine and Kassel in a time that more than ever demands comfort and solidarity. Bolero considers this artistic interaction at Documenta 15 to be an important moment (it's the 2nd time Bolero links to Documenta like it did in Documenta 14, in its Athens off-show).
